What is a ScholarSmart travel pass?

An overview of what it is...

The size of a standard credit card and containing electronic data stored on a micro-chip, the ScholarSmart travel pass replaces the need for money when travelling on Stephensons buses. This provides you with an easier way to manage your travel. ScholarSmart travel passes are issued to a specific individual and are valid between two dates, normally a term or academic year.

Using your ScholarSmart travel pass...

It really couldn't be simpler! As you get on the bus, touch the yellow reader pad with your ScholarSmart travel pass, wait for the green light and the 'beep' and then find your seat.

More secure....

If you lose your ScholarSmart travel pass between the valid dates of the card, then simply contact us and we will block the card. You then order a replacement online (a small charge will apply). Once you lose a paper ticket or money, they're gone for good which means the cost of your travel instantly increases!

Pre-allocated routes....

Each ScholarSmart travel pass is pre-programmed to work on the specific service needed to get a student to and from home and the place of study. The pass will not be accepted on other routes, making it even more secure.

Online top-up...

Once you have a ScholarSmart travel pass card, you don't have to worry about replacing it for the next term or academic year. Simply top-up the card online. No more repeated applications, no more lost cards in the post!

Please note: ScholarSmart travel pass cards should not be stored alongside credit cards or other smart or magnetic cards. Doing so may prevent the card being accepted for travel by our readers, and if permanently corrupted you may be required to pay for a replacement.
